

Also there was energy felt on a wall of clocks in the office of the building. This energy was of two people who were not ghosts but people who have died and passed over. One person was named Wilver. Some of the clocks belonged to him. He was 65 years old, salt-and-pepper hair, died of a heart attack at 9:00 p.m. Another person was named Francesca and a clock belonged to her. She was 80 years old. Energy was also felt on a wooden ironing board. Diane and I felt the energy of three different women. The ironing board belonged to these women at different times.

OTHER COMMENTS:

These spirits were frozen in time. When the owners started remodeling, the spirits became disturbed so they started to appear in a sorrowful manner. Because there are so many people who attend the club, the spirits feed off of their energy consequently becoming stronger. In time, they will become more readily visible.
