Phenomena Witnessed by Psychic Medium Investigator: Virginia Marco

There were six ghosts in the establishment:

-A Native American male of the Cheyenne tribe from the early 1800s. Long brown hair, red/bronze skin, between the ages of 20-25, clothes made from animal skins, headband with white feather attached, long-sleeve fringed jacket, pants, ankle-length boots. He died from a gunshot through the forehead. He was waiting for his people to return for him.

-A 23 year old girl named Theresa, brunette, hair length to the base of the neck, white skin, burgundy dress, pearl necklace. Loves to dance and see people dancing.

-A gambling cowboy from the mid-1800s, black hat, black coat, brown hair, mustache, white skin, around 40 years of age. Made a large amount of noise, was hiding from the group. I demanded him to show himself and immediately there was a loud wooden crack. Then he appeared. He was elbowing Diane.

-A Mexican male from the early 1800s, bronze skin, husky build, happy, affectionate towards a large bureau. Off-white colored shirt, brown pants, black boots, about 30 years old, died of a heart attack.

-Male drunkard, beer gut, bald with a rim of curly brown hair, white shirt, Levi's jeans, bad breath, around 50 years of age, died in 1972.

-Male with shoulder-length blond hair, skinny, slashed with a knife across the back of the neck 10-15 years ago. He was wearing a blue shirt, Levi's jeans, and snake-skin boots.

Also, there was energy felt on a wall of clocks in the office of the building. This energy was of two people who were not ghosts but people who have died and passed over. One person was named Wilver. Some of the clocks belonged to him. He was 65 years old, salt-and-pepper hair, died of a heart attack at 9:00 p.m. Another person was named Francesca and a clock belonged to her. She was 80 years old. Energy was also felt
